A Brake Beam Rider.

As the local train was slowly pulling out of Westminster on Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, a tramp much under the influence of liquor was seen to dart under the first-class carriage, grasp one of the brake rods and swing himself safely on to one of the trucks. The whole thing was done so quickly that the onlookers had no time to interfere, and they at first imagined the man meant to commit suicide. The train was instantly stopped and the tramp made to get off his perch, which he did very reluctantly, and took refuge under the roadway. A number of people gathered and questioned him as to his motives, but he did not want to speak and implored the people to disperse in case the police would "nail" him. The man finally got away, but those who saw the reckless act marvel that he escaped with his life, and declare none but a drunken man could have performed the deed without accident.—Columbian.

THE LIBERALS WILL DEFEND THE POLICE.

Cardinal Manning wishes Caine God-speed in the Cause he is Championing.—A Young Couple Commit Suicide in a Fit of Despair.—The Emperor William.

LONDON, June 28.—The test of popular opinion on the question of compensation to publicans which is the basis of the Caine's campaign at Barrow on Furnesse, is attracting more attention than has been given to any single election in England in many years and the contest for the seat promises to be waged with a degree of bitterness that will sever many a life long friendship. Cardinal Manning has taken part in the campaign to the extent of writing a letter to Caine in which he bids that gentleman God speed in the cause which he has made himself the champion of. The Venerable Prelate writes that he always refused to take part in political matters, but he regards this issue is a question of morals and therefore he feels called upon to express his views and declare his preference. The action of the Barrow Liberals in putting up a candidate, readers Caine's return extremely unlikely, while Lord Hartington's telegram advising Unionists to support the candidate is believed to be of sufficient weight to give a seat to the Conservatives.

The Liberals have resigned the cause of the police in their attempt to obtain recognition of their demands, and will endeavor to have the matter discussed in Parliament, with a view to putting an end to certain state affairs. It is freely asserted by the police that Sir Edward Bradford has used all the influence the possesses with Home Secretary Matthews, inducing that official to make no concessions to the force, and has represented himself as being capable of dealing with the situation in a way that will prevent any similar trouble in the future.

Several days ago a young bank clerk named Hasselberink eloped from Oldham with a young woman named Lutzke, to whom he had long been engaged to be married, but whose parents opposed the match. The couple went to Copenhagen, where they took rooms at a hotel. Yesterday their supply of money gave out, and in despair of obtaining more they committed suicide.

Emperor William has paid a great deal of attention to the Somali chiefs who are visiting Berlin, and has loaded them down with presents.

They Face Death to Save Friends.

DUNBAR, Pa., June 28.—At a conference which lasted nearly an hour every possible plan of rescue was discussed, but none of them was adopted. Finally Inspectors Lontitt, Neighley and Secretary Watchorn and workman Kerfoot and Manager Hill of the Furnace company decided to face death itself that the entombed men may be rescued. They decided to go to the fore and together dig through those 11 feet of coal, about two hours work. They are provided with all appliances for safety but they carry their lives in their hands and everybody about the pit bade them goodbye and wished for their safe return.

Fort Townsend's Fourth of July.

PORT TOWNSEND, June 26.—Preparations are being made for the grandest Fourth of July celebration ever held in this city. Patrick Henry Winston has been selected to deliver the oration on that occasion. The celebration will take in July 4, 5 and 6. About $7,000 will be distributed in prizes and premiums. At 9 o'clock the parade will be formed in front of the opera house, and will march to the Mountain View hotel, where the literary exercises of the day will be had. At noon a salute of forty-three guns will be fired at Fort Townsend, at the head of the bay. The baseball game between the Townsends and the Amities of Victoria, will be called at 2 o'clock in the new park in the Eisenbeis addition. Boat racing will begin at 4.30 p. m. This will include skiff, sail and canoe racing. The canoes will be operated by Indians in native costume. At 8 p. m. the display of fireworks will begin and will be a grand affair. Miscellaneous sports, horse racing, fire company contests, etc., will be had on the second and third days. A large attendance is expected from the outside cities on that day.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and Elsewhere.

A big crowd went out to the Caledonian grounds this afternoon to see the game between the James Bays and Victorian. At the time THE TIMES went to press, the game was being hotly contested.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING.

The two unknown wrestlers who are to meet on Monday evening at Conlin's Hall, are both making strong efforts to win, and the match will be one of the keenest ever witnessed. There will not be the slightest feature of crookedness about the affair either, which relieves it from the uncertainty of a professional match. Each contestant is jealous of the others powers, and the weakest man will have to go down.

Dan McLeod, the Nanaimo wrestler, at present in Frisco, challenges all the local wrestlers, particularlizing the Jap, Cameron, Quinn and Richardson, and is very anxious to meet any or all of them.

CRICKET.

The new Berseford Cricket Club was out for a practice game to-day.

R. for a single fare, good for return on that date only, and in addition to the regular train service special trains will be run as follows: Leaving Wellington for Victoria and way stations at 5:40 p. m.; leaving Victoria for Wellington and way stations at 6 p.m.

Farming Implements.

Among the freight that will go up by the Rithet to morrow night will be a car load of farming machinery shipped by Nicholles & Renouf to parties at Ashcroft. The farming implement business has increased wonderfully this last season and all the Victoria firms have been kept busy filling orders for all kinds of machinery. This works well for the farming industry of the province which is steadily increasing.

More New Boats.

It is rumored, and on pretty good authority, that a prominent C. P. N. Company official will shortly leave for California to buy a new boat to replace the steamer Sardonyx. The boat spoken of is a new one having been built in Maine about two years ago. The Sardonyx was a very handy boat for the northern route, except for her peculiar way of finding sunken rocks, and it is doubtful if the company can get another to suit them as well. It is also said that the company have had their eye on the Danube for some time past but she is not for sale.

Address and Presentation.

During the High School examination yesterday afternoon Miss Cameron presented the following address, accompanied by a silver water set, to Miss Forrest, the retiring teacher of James Bay ward school:

DEAR MISS FORREST—There is a time to meet and a time to part; a time to form new ties, as also a time in which the old ones must be gently severed. Time brings round many changes, and although, today, we must say "Good-bye and God speed!" we hope that on some bright to-morrow we may welcome you back among us. From that long ago day when school was called for the first time in the old Broughton street building until the present, as pupil and teacher, you have been closely identified with the public schools of Victoria. During that time your integrity, your faithfulness, and your high sense of justice have gained for you the respect and esteem alike of pupils, parents and of your fellow teachers. You will please take with you on your travels, with our best wishes, this reminder of old days and of us. May it help to keep warm all the old memories.

DIMPLE AND DUMPLING.

A LITTLE GIRL'S EXPERIENCE IN A BARBER'S CHAIR.

Two Curls to Remember the Baby Face and Days.—The Knight of the Shears Kept Under Constant Fire While His Customer Gave Away Family Secrets.

There was only one chair vacant in a down-town barber shop the other day when a tall young man, accompanied by a lady and a lovely little girl of five, entered, and, calling the head barber to one side, gave him a few explicit directions, writes a contributor to the Chicago Herald. Then the little girl's hat was removed and the barber enveloped her in one of the big white aprons. The young man lifted her into the barber's chair with a whispered word of reassurance, and the lady after kissing her, passed her hands caressingly over all the beautiful golden brown curls. Then she sat down in a corner where the child could not see her face and pulled out her pocket handkerchief.

By this time the occupants of the five other chairs had become vastly interested. All eyes were fixed on the sweet baby face, with its curly halo. It was a pale little face and there was no rosebuds on its cheeks, but above them were two glorious gray eyes that shone like a pair of stars. On each side of the little face rested a particularly fat curl. The child placed her hand upon each as the barber advanced with the big shears, and gazed beseechingly into his face.

"Now, Mr. Barber, I want you to leave Dimple and Dumpling until the very last—cut all the rest of them off first, please. I shall miss them dreffully, you know; me and Dimple and Dumpling has always been such friends. Dimple is going out to my papa in a letter. My papa is way out in Ceylon, you know. You haven't got a papa way out in Ceylon, Mr. Barber."

"No, miss, I ain't got none at all."

"And haven't you got no mamma, Mr. Barber? My mamma is going to put Dumpling into her 'Don't You Remember' box. Did you ever see a 'Don't You Remember' box, Mr. Barber?"

"No, miss, I never did."

"Mamma's has got such a funny lot of things in it. There's a little bit of orange blossom, and a little pinafore that Alec used to wear. That's Alec over there by the window. And there's a little red shoe that was our little bruffer's. His name was Robin, and he died before any of us was borned, you know."

At this moment the mother stepped forward and whispered to the little girl. There was an old gentleman with a very red face in one of the other chairs, who shook like a veritable jelly at the child's remark. Big Brother Alec was blushing furiously, and the whole barber shop was all agog.

There was silence for a moment or two while the scissors went snip, snip, snip. Then the little prattler broke forth again.

"Mamma says I'm talking too much, Mr. Barber; but if I don't talk I shall begin to cry. I cried awfully yesterday, you know; so did mamma and nurse. That was when the doctor came and said they'd have to be cutted off. We all cried—'cept Cecil. He's 8. He never cries—'cepting when mamma spanks him. Then he howls. But at last I stopped crying, for Alec said he'd take me to lunch with him when we came in to have it done; nurse said she'd let me sit up till half past 7 for a whole week; mamma's going to get me a silver thimble, and cook is going to have waffles for tea when we get back. Do you like waffles, Mr. Barber?"

The barber replied in the affirmative, and then there was silence for a little while.

"Have you got a sweetheart, Mr. Barber?" A titter ran around the room, and the barber turned as red as his pole outside, but he replied in the negative.

"Alec's got one," pursued the child. "He goes to tea with her on Sunday. Cecil says he's awfully sweet on her, when—"

But Alec waited to hear no further. He bolted bodily and waited on the corner until the ordeal was at an end. The lady arose and whispered some further cautions, but they proved of no avail.

"Well, Mr. Barber, if you haven't got any sweetheart or papa or mamma you must be a norphan. Are you a norphan?"

The man nodded his head, and then asked his questioner to keep her head still like a good girl.

Another pause. Then:

"Mr. Barber?"

"Yes, Miss."

"If you is a norphan what does you say when you go to bed? You can't 'God bless papa and mama' any more. I'm very glad I'm not a norphan."

There was a dead silence in the room after that until the red-faced old gentleman blew his nose. The barber's task was almost finished now.

"What's the matter, mamma? You're cryin'."

"Why, no. I'm not Lena. What makes——"

"Oh, but yes you are, mamma. I can hear you sniffling, and besides I can see your face in the looking glass. There's two big tears running down your nose."

"Now, miss, just please sit steady a minute."

The scissors gave snip, and poor Dumpling fell down into her lap. Dimple followed an instant later, and the child looked ruefully at the two beautiful severed curls.

"Good-by, Dumpling and Dimple," she said, and the tears began to gather. They almost overflowed a moment later as the barber lifted her from the chair and she walked to the long mirror to survey herself. But her mother was equal to the emergency. Before Lena had time to realize her changed appearance she called to her to come and help her put Dimple into the letter for Ceylon. The mother wound the two curls about her finger and then tied a little bit of blue ribbon round each of them. She put Dumpling away in her reticule and Dimple was placed among the closely written sheets of foreign paper which she took out of an envelope. The letter was sealed then and after that they rose to go.

"Thank you very much, Mr. Barber," said the little child, holding her hand out. "When me and Cecil get whiskers we'll come to you to cut them off. Do you play baseball, Mr. Barber? Cos if you do I'm going to give you a present. Would you like a ticket for our baseball match, Mr. Barber?"

She pulled out a little bit of pasteboard from her pocket and handed it to him:

GRAND BASEBALL MATCH

DICK TURPINS VS.

TUSCARORAHS

Admission. - - 3 Pins.

"Cecil is captain of the Dick Turpins and he said now that I was going to have my hair cut off I'd be just as good as a boy. So he's going to lend me a pair of trousers and I'm to be second base."

A roar rose from each respective chair. As for the jolly old gentleman, he collapsed utterly. In the midst of the confusion the lady tried to escape, but Lena's hat had to be put on and caused still another delay.

"No more snarls in the morning now mamma," remarked the young lady as she put it on. But then she drew a very long face. "Oh, mamma, it wobbles dreadfully."

The barber slipped some paper inside the lining of the hat and then they set off.

But just at the doorway the red-faced old gentleman accosted them. He had his hat on by this time, but he took it off immediately and made a most courteous bow.

"Madam," he exclaimed, "there are two things I want particularly, and you can grant me both of them. I want a kiss from that little daughter of yours and a ticket for that baseball match. I can't pay the price of admission, for I haven't three pins to my name, but perhaps this," and as he spoke he slipped something bright and shiny into Lena's hand, "to be devoted to soda water after the Tuscaroras have been completly done up, might answer the purpose just as well."

The lady smiled and allowed Lena to give him the desired kiss, but she handed him back the money and could not be prevailed upon to accept it. Then, with a parting nod to the barber, the two joined Alec on the corner. When last seen Lena was lifted up to the letter box to dispatch Dimple on the first stage of his long journey, and the red-faced gentleman, as he lost sight of the crowd on Broadway, vowed fervently that he would see that game of base ball even if it cost a leg.

THE TABERNACLE PULPIT

DR. TALMAGE DELIVERS A FORCIBLE SERMON FROM RUTH I, 14.

The History of Orpah, the Cowardly Daughter-in-Law, Who Faltered by the Way—The Road to Happiness Is Full of Stumbling Stones.

BROOKLYN, June 22.—Dr. Talmage gives another evidence of his genius in his sermon for today. The Book of Ruth has furnished the subject for many sermons, but they have naturally been concerned with the central character of that beautiful story; it remained for the popular Brooklyn divine to find in the character of the less conspicuous widow material for spiritual lessons. His text is Ruth i, 14: "And they lifted up their voice, and wept again: and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law; but Ruth clave unto her." Following is the sermon:

Moab was a heathen land. Naomi is about to leave it and go into the land of Bethlehem. She has two daughters-in-law, Ruth and Orpah, who conclude to go with her. Naomi tells them they had better not leave their native land and undertake the hardship of the journey, but they will not be persuaded. They all three start out on their journey. After awhile Naomi, although she highly prized the company of her two daughters-in-law, attempted again to persuade them to go back because of the hardship and self denial through which they would be obliged to go. Ruth responds in the words from which I once discoursed to you: "Entreat me not to leave thee, nor to return from following after thee; for where thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge; thy people shall be my people and thy God my God, where thou diest will I die and there will I be buried; the Lord do so to me and more also if aught but death part thee and me." Not so with her sister Orpah. Her determination had already been shaken. The tears and peril of the journey began to appall her, and she had worshiped the gods of Moab so long that it was hard to give them up. From this point Orpah turned back, the parting being described in the words of my text: And they lifted up their voice and wept again and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clave unto her.

ORPAH'S COMPASSION FOR NAOMI.

Learn from this story of Orpah that some of those who do not leave the Moab of their iniquities are persons of fine susceptibility. It was compassion for Naomi, in her widowhood and sorrow, that led Orpah to start with her toward Bethlehem. It was not because of any lack of affection for her that she turned back. We know this from the grief exhibited at parting. I do not know but that she had as much warmth and ardor of nature as Ruth, but she lacked the courage and persistence of her sister. That there are many with as fine susceptibility as Orpah who will not take up their cross and follow Christ is a truth which needs but little demonstration. Many of those who have become the followers of Jesus have but very little natural impressibility. Grace often takes hold of the hardest heart and the most unlovely character and transforms it. It is a hammer that breaks rocks. In this Christ often shows his power. It wants but little generalship to conquer a flat country, but might of artillery and heroism to take a fort manned and ready for raking cannonade.

The great captain of our salvation has forced his way into many an armed castle. I doubt not that Christ could have found many a fisherman naturally more noble hearted than Simon Peter, but there was no one by whose conversion he could more gloriously have magnified his grace. The conversion of a score of Johns would not have illustrated the power of the Holy Ghost as much as the conversion of one Peter. It would have been easier to drive twenty lambs like John into the fold than to tame one lion like Peter. God has often made some of his most efficient servants out of men naturally unimpressionable. As men take stiff and unwieldy timbers, and under huge handed machinery bend them into the hulk of great ships, thus God has often shaped and bent into his service the most unwieldy natures, while those naturally impressionable are still in their unchanged state.

COMMUNION WITH GOD.

Oh, how many, like Orpah, have warm affections and yet never become Christians! Like Orpah, they know how to weep, but they do not know how to pray. Their fineness of feeling leads them into the friendships of the world, but not into communion with God. They can love everybody but him, who is altogether lovely. All other sorrow rends their heart, but they are untouched by the woes of a dying Christ. Good news fills them with excitement, but the glad tidings of great joy and salvation stir not their soul. Anxious to do what is right, yet they rob God. Grateful for the slightest favors, they make no return to him who wrung out the last drop of blood from his heart to deliver them from going down to the pit. They would weep at the door of a prison at the sight of a wicked captive in chains, but have no compassion for their own soul, over which Satan, like a grim jailer, holds the lock and key. When repulsive, grasping, unsympathetic natures resist the story of a Saviour's love it does not excite our surprise, but it is among the greatest of wonders that so many who exhibit Orpah's susceptibility also exhibit Orpah's impenitency.

We are not surprised that there is barrenness in a desert, but a strange thing is it that sometimes the Rose of Sharon will not grow in a garden. On a summer morning we are not surprised to find a rock without any dew on it, but if going among a flock of lilies we saw in them no glittering drops we would say, "What foul sprite has been robbing these vases?" We are not surprised that Herod did not become a Christian, but how strange that the young man Jesus loved for his sweetness of temper should not have loved the Redeemer. Hard hearted Felix trembled, proud Nebuchadnezzar repented, and cruel Manasseh turned unto the Lord; but many a nature, affectionate and gentle, has fought successfully against divine influences. Many a dove has refused to come in the window of the ark, although finding no rest for the sole of her foot.

THWARTING FOR THE HOLY SPIRITS.

Again, the history of Orpah impresses upon us the truth that there are many who make a good starting, but after awhile change their minds and turn back. When these three mourners start from their home in Moab there is as much probability that Orpah will reach Bethlehem as that her sister Ruth and her mother-in-law Naomi will arrive there. But while these sojourns in the journey they commenced, Orpah after awhile gets discouraged and turns back. This is the history of many a soul. Perhaps it was during a revival of religion they resolved upon a Christian life and made preparations to leave Moab. Before that they were indifferent to the sanctuary; churches were necessary evils. The ministers almost always preached poor sermons, because they had not the heart to hear them. They thought the bread was not good because their appetite was poor. Religion did very well for invalids and the aged, but they had no desire for it.

Suddenly a change came upon their soul. They found that something must be done. Every night there was a thorn in their pillow. There was gall in their wine. They found that their pleasures were only false lights of a swamp that rise out of decay and death. Losing their self control they were startled by their own prayer, "God be merciful to me a sinner." They did not suspect it, but the Holy Ghost was in their soul. Without thinking what they were doing they brushed the dust off the family Bible. The ground did not feel as firm under them, nor did the air seem as bright. They tried to dam back the flood of their emotions, but the attempt failed and they confessed their anguish of soul before they meant to. The secret was out! They wanted to know what they must do to be saved.

"OH, THAT I WERE A CHRISTIAN."

With Ruth and Naomi weeping Orpah started for the land of Bethlehem. They longed for the Sabbath to come. Straight as an arrow to the mark the sermon struck them. They thought the minister must have heard of their case and was preaching right at them. They thought the sermon was very short, nor did they once call themselves up in their pew with their eyes shut and head averted with an air of unmoved dignity. They began to pray with an earnestness that astonished themselves and astonished others. Shoving the plane, or writing up accounts, or walking the street when you might have thought their mind entirely upon the world, they were saying within themselves: "Oh, that I were a Christian!" Orpah is fully started on the road to Bethlehem. Christian friends observing the religious anxiety of the awakened soul say: "He must certainly be a Christian. There is another soldier in Christ's ranks, another sick one has been cured of the leprosy." The observers turn their attention another way; they say: "Orpah is safe enough, she has gone to Bethlehem."

Alas! alas! Starting out for heaven is a very different thing from arriving there. Remember Lot's wife. She looked back with longing to the place from which she came, and was destroyed. Half way between Sodom and the city of refuge thus strange storm comes upon her, and its salt and brimstone gather on her garments until they are so stiffened she cannot proceed, nor can she lie down because of this dreadful wrapping around her garments and limbs, and long after her life has gone she still stands there, so covered up by the strange storm that she is called a pillar of salt, as some sailor on ship's deck in the wintry tempest stands covered with a mail of ice. Ten thousand times ten thousand men have been destroyed half way between Sodom and the city of refuge. Orpah might as well never have started as afterward to turn back. Yet multitudes have walked in her footsteps. Go among those the least interested in sacred things, and you will find that they were once out of the land of Moab. Every one of them prayed right heartily and studied his Bible and frequented the sanctuary, but Lot's wife looked back wistfully to Sodom, and Orpah retreated from the company of Ruth and Naomi. It is an impressive thought that after Orpah had gone so far as actually to look over into the land of Bethlehem she turned back and died in Moab.

"THEY LIFTED UP THEIR VOICE AND WEPT."

Again, let our subject impress upon us the truth that those who have once felt it their duty to leave their natural state cannot give up their duty and go back to hardness of heart without a struggle. After Orpah had thoroughly made up her mind to go back to the place from which she started she went through the sad scene of parting with Ruth and Naomi. My text says, "They lifted up their voice and wept." Ah, my hearer, it requires more decision and perseverance to stay away from the kingdom of God than to enter it. Although she did not know it, Orpah passed through a greater struggle in turning back into the land of Moab than would have been necessary to take her clear through to Bethlehem. Suppose you that those persons who have remained in their evil ways have had no struggle? Why, they have been obliged to fight every inch of their way.

The road to death is not such easy traveling as some ministers have been accustomed to describe it. From beginning to end it is fighting against the sharp sword of the Spirit. It is climbing over the cross. It is wading through the deep flood of the son of God. It is scaling mountains of privilege. It is wading through lakes of sorrow. It is breaking over communion tables and baptismal fonts and pulpits and Bibles. It is wedging one's self through between pious kindred who stand before and press us back and hold on to us by their prayers even after we have passed them in our headlong downward career. No man ought to think of undertaking to go back into Moab after having come within sight of Bethlehem unless he have a heart that cannot be made to quake, and a sure foot that will not slip among infinite perils, and an arm that can drive back the Son of God, who stands in the center of the broad road spreading out his arms and shouting into the ear of the thoughtless pilgrim, "Stop! stop!"

CHRISTIANITY IS A SOLEMN THING.

We talk about taking up the cross and following Jesus, but that cross is not half so heavy as the burden which the sinner carries. It is a very solemn thing to be a Christian, but it is a more solemn thing not to be a Christian. There are multitudes who, afraid of the self denials of the Christian, rush into the harder self denials of the unbeliever. No yoke but Christ's, however light and galling! Orpah goes back to her idolatries, but she returns weeping, and all who follow her will find the same sorrows. Just in proportion as gospel advantages have been numerous will be the disturbance of the heart that will not come to Christ.

The Bible says in regard to the place where Christ was buried: "In the midst of the garden there was a sepulcher," and in the midst of the most flowery enjoyments of the unpardoned there is a chilliness of death. Although they may pull out the arrows that strike their soul from the Almighty's quiver, there remain a sting and a smarting. If men wrench themselves away from Christ they will bear the mark of his hand by which he would have rescued them. The pleasures of the world may give temporary relief from the upbraidings of conscience, but are the soporifying drugs that dull the pain only temporarily. Ahab has a great kingdom, and you would think he might be happy with his courtiers and chariots and palaces, yet he goes to bed sick because Naboth will not sell him his vineyard. Haman is prime minister of the greatest nation in the world, and yet one poor man who will not bow the knee makes him utterly miserable. Herod monopolizes the most of the world's honor, and yet is thrown into a rage because they say a little child is born in Bethlehem who may after awhile dispute his authority. Byron conquered the world with his pen, and yet said that he felt more unhappiness from the criticism of the most illiterate reader than he experienced pleasure from the praise of all the talented.

THE IMMORTAL SHENSTONE.

In the last century in England lived the immortal Shenstone. Portions of his life were given to the writing of poetry, but this was not evidently the field for which nature had equipped him. His name will never be forgotten, because of the home which he adorned and beautified until there probably never has been so bright a spot since the Garden of Eden as what he loved to call "The Leasowes." In addition to the marvels which nature had wrought he added the perfection of art. Arbors and terrace and slope and rustic temple and reservoir and urn and fountain here had their crowning. Oak and yew and hazel put on their glory of verdure. What the greenness of deep grass, and the foam of cascade, and the glitter of still lake could give of beauty were added. No life was more diligent and no soul more ingenious than those of Shenstone, and all that genius and diligence were directed to the adornment of that treasured spot. What more could one want to make home happy?

Yet there is one man who sits sighing in those bowers, and casting gloomy looks upon those parks, and the mirth of leaping waterfalls makes no melody in his ear. It is Shenstone, the owner of The Leasowes. "I have lost my road to happiness," says the despondent man. "I am angry and envious, and dejected and frantic, and disregard all present things just as it becomes a madman to do." My friends, there is no solid happiness in anything but religion. I care not how bright a home Orpah has in Moab, when she turns away from duty she turns away from peace. Amid the bacchanalia of Belshazzar's feast and the glitter of chalices there always will come out a handwriting on the wall fearfully ominous: "Tekel—weighed in the balances and found wanting." When you can reap harvests off bare rocks, and gather balm out of nightshade, and make sunlight sleep in the heart of sepulchers, and build a firm house on a rocky billow, then can an unpardoned soul find firm enjoyment amid its transgressions. Then can Orpah go back to Moab without weeping.

ALIVE IN CHRIST; DEAD IN SIN.

Again, this subject teaches that a religious choice and the want of it frequently divide families. Ruth and Orpah and Naomi were tenderly attached. They were all widows, and their life had been consecrated by a baptism of tears. In the fire of trial their affections had been forged. Together they were so pleasantly united you can hardly imagine them separated. Yet a fatal line is drawn dividing them from each other, perhaps forever. Naomi cannot live in a heathen country. She must go into Bethlehem, that there among the pious she may worship the true God. Ruth makes a similar choice, but Orpah rebels. "And they lifted up their voice and wept again, and Orpah kissed her mother-in-law, but Ruth clave unto her." The history of this family of Elimelech is the history of many families of this day.

How often it is that in a circle of relatives, while they look alike and walk alike and talk alike, there is a tremendous difference. Outwardly united in the affectional relations of this life, they are separated in the most important respects. Some now are the children of light and others the children of darkness. These are alive in Christ and those are dead in sin. Ruth in the land of Bethlehem, Orpah in Moab. Of the same family are David and Solomon, worshipers of the most high God, and Adonijah and Absalom, who live and die the enemies of all righteousness. Belonging to the same family was the holy and devout Eli and the reckless Phineas and Hophni. Jonathan Edwards, the good, and Pierrepoint Edwards, the bad, belong to the same family. Aaron Burr, the dissolute, had a most excellent father. Dying yet immortal hearer, by the solemnity of the parental and filial and conjugal relation, by the sacredness of the family hearth, by the honor of the family name, by the memory of departed kindred, I point out this parting of Ruth and Orpah.

REASONS FOR REFUSING CHRIST.

Again, this subject suggests to me two of the prominent reasons why people refuse the kingdom of Christ. There may have been many other reasons why Orpah left her sister and mother-in-law and went back home, but there were two reasons which I think were more prominent than the rest. She had been brought up in idolatries. She loved the heathen gods which her ancestors had worshiped, and though these blocks of wood and stone could not hear she thought they could hear, and though they could not see she thought they could see, and though they could not feel she thought they could feel. A new religion had been brought to her attention. She had married a godly man. She must often have heard her mother-in-law talk of the God of Israel. She was so much shaken in her original belief that she concluded to leave her idolatries, but coming to the margin of the land of Bethlehem her determination failed her and speedily she returned to her gods.

This is the very reason why multitudes of persons never become Christians. They cannot bear to give up their gods. Business is the American juggernaut that crushes more men than the great car of the Hindoos. To it they say their morning and evening prayers. A little of Christ's religion may creep into the Sabbath, but Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday are the days devoted to this American idol. Every hour there is a sacrifice on the altar. Home duties, health of body, manly strength and immortal affections must all burn in this holocaust. Men act as though they could take their bonds and mortgages and saws and trowels and axes and day books with them into the kingdom of heaven.

NEGLECTING RELIGIOUS DUTIES.

There are many who have no unholy thirst for gold, yet who are devoting themselves to their worldly occupations with a ruinous intensity. Men of the Stock Exchange, men of the yardstick, men of the saw, men of the trowel, men of the day book, what will become of you, if unforgiven, in the great day when there are no houses to build, and no goods to sell, and no bargains to make? It is possible to devote one's self even to a lawful calling until it becomes sinful. There is no excuse on the earth or under the earth for the neglect of our deathless spirit. Lydia was a seller of purple, yet she did not allow her offensive occupation to keep her from becoming a Christian. Daniel was secretary of state and attorney general in the empire of Babylon, and yet three times a day he found time to pray with his face toward Jerusalem. The man who has no time to attend to religion will have no time to enter heaven.

But there are others who, while their worldly occupation has no particular fascination over them, are entirely absorbed in the gains that come to that occupation. This is the worship of Mammon. The ring of dollars and cents is the only library they ever utter. Though in the last day the

WARM SPRINGS CAMP.

THE GREAT KOOTENAY SILVER REGION.

A Scientific Explanation of the Origin of Kootenay Lake—The Terraced Mountain—The Bluebell Mine—Earliest Mineral Discovery on the Pacific Coast.

Former letters have displayed to you that silver ribbon two miles wide, Kootenay Lake that sunders the Selkirk and Purcell ranges. These mountains are of silvery grey strata of immeasurable age and at some remote time have been heaved up sharp to the east. Long ages of rain, frost, and glacier action have worn down the rocks, leaving the edges of the harder beds standing out in long desolate ridges against the sky. Hence are these long lines of summits nesting the glaciers in their icy breasts, from where the lateral canyons lead down every spring their torrents of melting snow. Among the hard rock Alps, strata of some three miles thick of pliable schists and limestones have been worn away, leaving between two lines of Alps the long deep chasm of Kootenay Lake. The slopes of this chasm present on the western side from lake to mountain top the edges of these schists and limestones, and here again the harder strata stand out in ridges, leaving the mountain face cut in terraces. The slope is capped with instrusive granite which here reaches away between Slokane lake and the lower Kootenay westward to the Columbia. This terraced mountain side is the Warm Springs Camp. The limes and schists reach across the entire lake bed, and on the eastern shore, their lowest member just appears above the shore in a little headland resting against the grey slopes of the under granite. This little headland is the Hendryx Camp. We are here upon almost historic ground. It is said that as early as 1825 Douglas, the botanist, found the float of the Bluebell mine, while passing by canoe along the shore. In that case we may consider it is the first important mineral discovery in the far west, as it was not until 1835 that coal was found on the coast, nor was gold discovered until 1849 in California. The fur traders were then extending their operations throughout the Columbia basin, and far from their base of supplies required lead. They came to this place for lead and made bullets, and with their bullets destroyed buffalo and carriboo and bears by scores of thousands. Possibly the traders did not known that they were firing silver from their guns. It was nothing to them. They came for furs, and any treasures they found they kept secret. They did not want to fill their game preserves with mining men.

Their day passed. The fur trader gave place to the placer miner, as the placer miner must give place to the quartz miner and to civilization. Geo. Hurst, of San Francisco, called upon to examine the Bluebell mine by one of its early holders, found it too remote from the world's markets to be operated in his day. Again and again the great claim was occupied and abandoned, until it came to be held a few years since by a man named Sproule. He it was who first succeeded in attracting the attention of capitalists, and he had already parted with a large proportion of his interests therein when one Hamil attempted to jump his claim. Sproule shot Hamil. The arm of the law has reached to the scene of this tragedy, and Sproule has been hanged. The mine, now in possession of powerful American capitalists, promises at last to justify the old pioneers. Under the management of Dr. Hendryx, who has created a wagon road and a line of steamers to connect the district with the Northern Pacific, and erected the Kootenai railway station, and the post at Bonner's ferry, to minister to the wants of travellers. Not only has Kootenay lake become at last an accessible mining camp, but the Bluebell mine has already its powerful air drill, many hundreds of feet of shafts and tunnels, and ample accommodation for the numbers of men engaged. The doctor tells me that within eighteen months he will have a very large smelting plant, with which he will not only be able to treat his own ores but to take outside custom. He hopes also to have an electric power plant upon a neighboring stream. It is a great mine. The two ledges, each about eighty feet wide, the furthest not seventeen hundred feet from the water's edge, bearing fifteen to forty ounces of silver to the ton, and a large percentage of lead. The Newhaven Mining and Smelting Company must indeed be congratulated upon the prospect as shown by their work. Little or nothing has yet been done by the Ainsworth syndicate, which holds charters on the adjacent "Kootenay Chief" and "Comfort" prospects, which are probably just as valuable. Such is the lowest member of the silver bearing formations.

As the Warm Springs camp is a somewhat formidable subject to describe in one letter, we will postpone the terraced mountain opposite, towering above the little townsite of Ainsworth, for a future occasion. H. R. A. POCOCK.

The Corinth Canal.

One of the interesting canal enterprises now on foot is that which is to connect the Corinthian and Saronic gulfs of Greece. This canal across the Isthmus of Corinth, which is to render unnecessary the voyage around the Peloponnesus, will be four miles long—about the length of the Hoosac tunnel—but it would beat even that famous work in the lapse of time between its inception and completion. It was suggested by Pejiander, one of the seven wise men of Greece, nearly 500 years before Christ, again by Demetrius Pellocretes in 300 B. C., and once more by Julius Cæsar in 50 B.C. It was actually begun by Nero, who employed among other laborers 6000 Jews whom Vespasian had taken prisoners, and it is to be finished by Gen. Tuerr, a Polish engineer who was in the Italian service with Garibaldi, and who hopes to have it ready for use by 1892. He has carried on the work from the point at which Nero left off, following the letter's lines, and making use of a double row of 32 pits, some of them 130 feet deep, which had remained unchanged for 1890 years except that they had become filled with debris. The excavation now reaches from sea to sea, and is in some places 525 feet deep. The canal is to be over 75 feet wide at the top, and 260 feet in depth at the point where the isthmus is highest.

THE TABERNACLE PULPIT.

earth itself will not be worth a farthing, a heap of ashes scattered in the whirlwind, they are now giving their time and eternity for the acquisition of so much of it as you might at last hold in the hollow of one hand.

The American Indian who gave enough land to make a state out of for a string of beads made a princely bargain compared with the speculation of that man who gains the whole world and loses his own soul. How much comfort do the men take who died unforgiven ten years ago, leaving large fortunes to their heirs? Do they ever come up to count the gold they hoarded or walk through the mansions they built? Though they could have bought an empire, they have not now as much money as you have this moment in your pocket. Solomon looked upon his palace and the grounds surrounding it, pools rimmed with gold and circling roads along which at times rushed his fourteen hundred chariots, while under the outbranching sycamores and cedars walked the apes and peacocks which by the navy of Hiram had been brought from Tarshish, and from the window curtains with embroidered gold and purple through which came out the thrill of harps and psalteries mingling with the song of the waters.

When Solomon saw that all these luxuries of sight and sound had been purchased by his wealth he broke forth in the exclamation, "Money answereth all things." But we cannot receive it as literal. It cannot still the voice of conscience. It cannot drown the sorrows of the soul. It cannot put a bribe in the hand of death. It cannot unlock the gate of heaven. The tower of Siloam fell and killed eighteen of its admirers; but this idol, to whose worship the exchanges and banks and custom houses of the world have been dedicated, will fall and crush to death its thousands. But I cannot enumerate the idolatries to which men give themselves. They are kept by them from a religious life. "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon," and the first thing that Christ does when he comes into the temple of the soul is to drive out the exchangers.

AFRAID OF SELF DENIAL.

But it was not only the gods of Moab that made Orpah leave her sister and mother-in-law. She doubtless had a dread of the hardship to which they would be exposed on the journey to Bethlehem, and Orpah was not alone in the fear. Doubtless some of you have been appalled and driven back by the self denials of the Christian life. The taunt of the world, the charge of hypocrisy which they would sometimes be obliged to confront, has kept many away from the land of Bethlehem. They spend their life in counting the cost, and because a Christian life demands so much courage and faith they dare not begin to build. Perhaps they are courageous in every other respect. They are not timid in presence of any danger except that of trusting in the infinite mercy of Christ.

The sheep are more afraid of the shepherd than of the wolves. They shrink away from the presence of Christ as though he were a tyrant rather than a friend who sticketh closer than a brother. They feel more safe in the ranks of the enemy where they must suffer infinite defeat than in the army of Christ which shall be more than conquerors through him that loved them. Men shiver and tremble before religion as though they were commanded to throw their life away, as though it were a surrender of honor and manliness and reason and self respect and all that is worth keeping.

What has God ever done that his mercy should be doubted? Was there ever a sorrow of his frailest child that he did not pity? Was there ever a soul that he left unhelped in the darkness? Was there ever a martyr that he did not strengthen in the flames? Was there ever a dying man to whose relief he did not come at the cry of "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Aye, my soul, what has God done that so basely thou hast doubted him? Did he make the whole earth a desert? Are all the skies dark and storm swept? Is life all sickness? Is the air all plague? Are there nothing but rods and scorpions and furnaces? God knew how many suspicions and unbeliefs men would entertain in regard to him, and therefore, after making a multitude of plain and precious promises, he places his hand on his own heart and swears by his own existence: "As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth."

Why then fight against God? This day the battle rages. Thou art armed with thy sins, thy ingratitude, thy neglects, and Christ is armed against thee, but his weapons are tears, are dying agonies, are calls to mercy, and the battle cry which he this day sends over thy soul as he rushes toward thee is "Save thee from going down to the pit, for I have found a ransom." I would not envy thy victory, O hearer, if then dost conquer for what will thou do with the weapons thou hast snatched from the armed Redeemer, what with the tears, what with his dying agonies, what with his calls to mercy? Would God that Orpah would get tired of Moab! Would God that Ornah would go to Bethlehem!

THE EFFECT OF THE M'KINLEY BILL.

The advocates of "National Policy," so far as heard from, contemplate with perfect equanimity the forthcoming McKINLEY bill. They seemingly flatter themselves that the loss of a market worth approximately $20,000,000 a year is of no especial consequence to the Canadian farmer. The Toronto Mail, treating of this important subject submits the following table taken from the United States trade returns, showing the importations of Canadian farm products into that country during the fiscal year:

Barley	$ 7,721,000
Horses	3,773,000
Rye	2,305,000
Sheep	1,130,000
Hay	1,092,000
Beans and peas	923,000
Cattle	556,000
Tobacco, leaf	421,000
Flax	370,000
Wool	215,000
Potatoes	189,000
Meats	163,000
Wheat	162,000
Malt	100,000
Food preparations	54,000
Other vegetables	52,000
Oats and oatmeal	33,000
Preserved fruit	31,000
Hemp	25,000
Butter	16,000
Other animals	11,000
Total	$18,200,000

Other minor items not enumerated would increase the total to over $20,000,000. So that, leaving barley out of the question, we have an export trade with the United States in farm produce of over $12,000,000, which the agricultural schedule of the McKinley bill is designed to destroy. "Is this a matter of very little interest to our farmers?" the Mail asks. Proceeding, the Mail points out that the "maltsters of Oswego, which city imports more barley than any other in the United States, have stated in the most emphatic terms that a duty of 30 cents a bushel would be prohibitive, and an excellent Canadian authority has made the same statement. If this be so, would not the proposed duty of 25 cents in place of the present duty of 10 cents have a restrictive effect upon the trade? "But then we can find other markets," rejoin the organs of "National Policy." To this the Mail responds, "that superior though our barley may be to that of the United States, it is not good enough for the English brewer, and, as our readers are aware, it has yet to be ascertained whether the two-rowed variety can be generally grown in Canada with success. Even if it can the Canadian farmer will not find a fortune in it. It is reported that the price of barley is falling in England, owing to the increasing use of American maize by the brewers of that country. These and other facts that might be mentioned are sufficient to show the absurdity of regarding the proposed action of our neighbors with indifference, and of supposing that new outlets for a large portion of our export trade can be found at will."

There is nothing more certain, the situation viewed from its present aspects than that the McKINLEY bill will prove a severe blow to the Canadian farmer and we believe it to be equally true that Canada will be disappointed in finding a market in England for her farm products. Perhaps, though it is the best thing that can happen this Chinese wall of protection. By the time another year shall have passed away, protection will have proved itself a blessing or a curse both in the United States and Canada. If it should have proved a blessing so much the better. If a curse the electorate will probably find means of getting rid of it.

HATRED OF ENGLAND.

The Week, referring to GOLDWIN SMITH's article in the May number of the North American Review, "Hatred of England," together with the rejoinder thereto in the current issue of that magazine, undertakes to some slight degree, the solution of the question itself, and with its usual acumen has succeeded in hitting the nail on the head. Says the Week:

"All the writers are pretty well agreed that "hatred" is altogether too strong a term to denote the dislike entertained by large numbers of the true American people for those of England, though their estimates of the reality and intensity of the feeling vary considerably. So far as this aversion has regard to personal traits, such as arrogance, superciliousness, and general notion of affectation of superiority, it may be said that the sentiment is not confined to Americans. It may be questioned whether it is not in some measure universal. One does not need to mingle long with the younger generations of Canadians, born and educated on this side of the ocean, to find a feeling precisely similar, sometimes pretty strongly developed, alongside of a profound appreciation and admiration of the sterling traits in the national character."

As above remarked aversion to Englishmen is not confined to Americans. The self-assertiveness and affectation of superiority peculiar to Englishmen have raised against them a host of enemies the world over, and the fact that they are always ready to make their pretensions good at the risk of their lives if necessary, together with the further fact that in all such efforts they have been uniformly successful, has excited envy as well as hate, has made England of all the nations one of the few which the world would like to see humiliated. With respect to self-confidence, and the disposition to resort to blows to make it good, the Englishman has no peer among his contemporaries. For a parallel case we must go back to the Romans for a people who exemplified egotism with moral stamina, and superciliousness with physical bravery to the degree that has distinguished Englishmen. But John Bull has proved himself superior to the Romans even. Luxury has not enervated him. The Roman dude in the latter days of the Empire had degenerated to the extent of preferring negotiation to fighting, or if fighting had to be done he preferred to hire a substitute. JOHN BULL has not yet come to that. If not as ready to fight as to eat, he is prompt enough; his superlative egotism is such that he thinks he can do his own fighting better than anybody else, and thus far in his stormy, blustering career he has proved the correctness of his judgment. JOHN BULL, probably, has gained more victories by main strength and awkwardness than any other nation under the sun. He owes his naval victories to bull dog tenacity, and we shall always think that he is under deeper obligations to his rank and file than he is to WELLINGTON. What was Waterloo? British obstinacy as a rock resisting the fierce onslaughts of the French. Posted in line or in squares, manled and hammered, the British infantry hooted in derision at the French cuirassiers. They would not run, the egotists, when luckily, just as annihilation seemed imminent, BLUCHER interposed and WELLINGTON became famous. In the Crimea British valor made up for British imbecility. There have been some stupidly conducted campaigns since, but British pluck has made up for it. On the whole England need not take it to heart that she is hated. She can stand it. If she has been insolent, she has never been craven, if she has been supercilious, she has never been ungenerous. Hatred and envy are the penalties of greatness. We repeat, England can stand it.

"LAND OF THE MAPLE LEAF."

TO THE EDITOR—Yesterday evening's TIMES contained a letter having reference to the new song, "Canada the land of the Maple Leaf," which letter is presumably intended for a literary criticism. Whilst I agree with "B.C." that the song pertains too much to vegetation, I protest against the reflection made upon us from a national point of view. As a Province, we may take pride in our connection with Canada, but I object strongly to the idea that some of our leading men are in accord with the sentiment that Canada has no individuality.

Imperial Federation is of course very commendable to the "tuft hunters," with whom this Province is largely blessed, as every other place is. We are Britons, undoubtedly, but we have ourselves to look after, and no matter what may be the opinions expressed by some politicians who profess to represent us, we should be entitled to views of our own. It is not my intention to refer particularly to the rhetorical treatment of the story, as mentioned by the TIMES correspondent with regard to the thistle "wagging its head," and the Irish shamrock "singing;" they are no doubt deserved. These literary faults, however, do not call for the unjustifiable and coarse remark that such "rhetorical blemishes would discredit a newspaper reporter." "British Columbia" may be, and may not be, an individual of good parts, but I question his acquaintance with the conditions under which newspaper work is conducted when he reflects, indirectly it is true, upon the newspaper reporter without whose good offices it is possible that "British Columbia" and indeed many of "British Columbia's" best friends, and most prominent politicians would have long ago exhibited in a light not at all creditable to themselves. People of "B C's" class pretend to despise reporters, yet when they are desirous of catching the public eye or ear, they are the first to seek the members of the "Fourth Estate." Outside of other questions, take the average public speaker. He will not bear actual verbatim reporting. I have tried it many times, and it has invariably been necessary for me to "dress" the speech to make it readable. Will "B C" enter the reporting profession? Perhaps his 'pure rhetoric' will prove an ornament to it. There are members of his superior ability outside the profession, why don't they enter? The world is full I admit, of newspaper frauds, posing as "literateurs", "dramatists," "authors," (save the mark!) and lecturers. These men have a great contempt for Dickens, Thackeray & Co., and will travel in all the above capacities simply asking that they be recognized as being connected with some well-known newspaper, the interior of whose office they have probably never seen. I consider that if "British Columbia" would only think for a moment about the full force of his remarks he would have given more consideration to the statement he so loosely made, and which was evidently intended for a witticism. A REPORTER.

CANADIAN NEWS.

Items of Interest Received by Telegraph from Different Points.

It is stated in Toronto that William Houston, formerly of the Globe, and at present legislative librarian, will be editor of the Mail. Another rumor is that David Creighton will be collector of the port of Toronto. Farrer will commence work on the Globe, Monday, July 14th.

John Anderson, an old resident of Glenallen, Ont., committed suicide by hanging himself on Friday morning.

The death is announced at St. Luce, Que., of the centenarian Charles Benedict La France, a veteran of 1812.

The new Quebec cabinet will, in all probability, be composed as follows: M. Mercier, president of the council; Joseph Shehan, treasurer; J. E. Robideux, attorney-general; P. Garneau, commissioner of agriculture; George Duhamel, commissioner of crown lands; Charles Langelier, provincial secretary; J. P. Pelletier, commissioner of public works; Arthur Boyer, without portfolio. Mercier will go to France in the course of a couple of months to make arrangements for the consolidation of the provincial debt.

The Globe's Ottawa correspondent says: General Middleton was shown the London cable intimating how his resignation was regarded in England as a settled fact. "What do they know about it there?" exclaimed Sir Fred. "They have nothing to do with it; I have sent in my resignation," and, added the General, "I am sick of Canadian newspapers."

Jumping Mines in Midwinter.

It will take a long time for the mining business to become the leading industry of British Columbia if claims are allowed to be jumped in the middle of winter, when the snow is many feet in depth, and afterwards grant the jumpers an extension of three months in which to do the required work to enable them to hold the ground jumped. Ordinary prospectors do not look for "ledges" and "float" in mid-winter; but prospectors from the neighborhood of Victoria are evidently not of the ordinary variety. They undergo suffering and privations in mid-winter in hunting up "ledges" already located; but cannot undergo any hardship or privation in doing the assessment work in balmy spring if there happens to be a few patches of snow on the mountain peaks. And the paternal government at Victoria sees to it that they are not compelled to undergo such privations. Indulgent government! Lucky "prospectors"!—Miner.

How it Works.

"No practical miner", says the Miner, or prospector favors the royalty section, for the reason that they well know it will retard the mining business. No prospector will prospect on land owned by the railroad company, for he well knows that operators will not take hold and develop his finds into paying properties if, in the end, a railroad corporation be permitted to levy a royalty on the profits; and the operator well knows that no mining company would submit its books for examination by a railroad company's tax gatherer. The argument that the railway promoters should be reimbursed for their large outlay in building roads through a sparsely settled country is not a good one. Railroads should not be, and generally are not built unless there is business in sight to justify their building. There is no more reason for demanding a royalty from a mining company who owns a claim on railroad land than there is for demanding a royalty from a merchant who sells goods in a building erected on a lot purchased in a railroad townsite. Every business man in a country traversed by a railway pays tribute to that railway in the way of fares and freights, and the railway manager that demands a royalty along with that tribute is not working to the best interests of the corporation he serves. All such legislation is pernicious, and should be repealed.

A GREAT DAY.

Aristocrats and Conservatives Hold a Sort of Labor Day Meeting.

LONDON, June 28.—To-day occurs the fifty-second anniversary of the coronation of Victoria as Queen of Great Britain and Ireland. Among the prominent observances of the occasion is an immense Tory and aristocratic demonstration which is now proceeding at the Crystal Palace. The members of the House of Lords and Commons were conspicuous participants in the affair, which is attended by tens of thousands of members of the Primrose Leagues and other Conservatives and ultra loyal organizations of the country. This evening a number of speeches will be made at the meeting which is intended to minimize the importance of the recent formidable labor and radical demonstration, held in honor of the forty-fourth anniversary of the birth of Charles Stewart Parnell. A grand banquet will be given this evening at the National Liberal Club. Speeches by many of the most renowned of the Liberal party in the House of Commons will be delivered.

BUCKS THE TIGER.

Madame Christine Nilsson a Confirmed Gambler—Plays Recklessly.

NEW YORK, June 28.—The World's special from Minneapolis says: A special from Stockholm, Sweden, says that a remarkable piece of history has come to light through a private letter from Nice. It concerns the world-renowned singer, Christine Nilsson. She has been stopping in Nice for some time, and her presence has been one of the attractions to the place. No end of gossip and surprise has been occasioned, however, by the fact that Nilsson is a helpless worshipper at a gambling shrine. She has become fascinated with play and is drawn to the tables as if by magic. The most of her time is spent in that fashionable gambling hell, Monte Carlo. According to a writer she plays feverishly and losses at times large sums, utterly indifferent to her losses, she watches the glittering coin. It used to be said that the fair Christine's one love was gold. She exhibits the same tendency in her gambling, and is buoyed up with the hope of winning fabulous sums. Nilsson has undergone a remarkable change, she is showing age and begins to look emaciated. Grayish pallor now overspreads her once beautiful face. As a songstress she will never appear in public again and it is rumored that deafness, which came on about two years ago is becoming more severe.

THE PASTEUR INSTITUTE.

Some of the Cases Being Treated at This New Famous Hospital.

NEW YORK, June 28.—Two persons who applied for treatment at the Pasteur Institute of this city to-day were, Dr. Gilbrier says turned away with the information that their cases were hopeless and that so far as Pasteur science can prophesy they were certain to die of hydrophobia. The first case was that of a boy about 12 years of age, who was bitten about a fortnight ago by a dog that was drowned before it had shown any symptoms of rabies. But little notice was taken of the boy's injuries at the time. He was bitten in the right leg, the wound being fearful, but apparently not serious. It responded to the usual antiseptic treatment and in the course of time was completely healed. Early this week the lad began to show symptoms of disease and became moody and cross when previously cheerfulness of disposition and buoyancy of spirits had been his chief characteristics. He grew worse instead of better and yesterday when taken to Dr. Gubler he faluted and had frequent attacks of nausea while undergoing examination. Dr. Gubler, satisfied that the lad was in an incipient stage of hydrophobia refused to receive him as a patient, believing that the case was one too far advanced to hope for favorable results. The boy's parents who are people in moderate circumstances were horrified by the doctor's decision. The doctor said to night: "I could do nothing for the boy for I am satisfied he will develop into a case of hydrophobia which will result fatally." The other case of hydrophobia offered for treatment at the institute to-day was refused for the same as was that of the citizen of Brunswick, Maine, whose family physician sent the following telegram to Dr. Gubler early in the day: "Please telegraph quickly the fees for patient for anti-rabies treatment. The town's people wish to subscribe for and send a patient (man) who is in the last stages of genuine hydrophobia." Dr. Gubler replied, saying that the cost of treatment depends upon the patient's means, but if the case was one of true hydrophobia the people had better save their money. One of the two (colored) boys from North Carolina, so long reported on their way, arrived this morning in care of a Mr. Maddux, who, with his family was coming to New York and consented to see the little fellow in Dr. Gubler's hands. The boy is John Scott. His companion, also colored, and is name is Thomas Corpening. The colored contingent at the institute will be further increased by a little girl aged five years, from Augusta, Ga., whose telegram said "will arrive tomorrow night." This girl was bitten by a dog which had been bitten by another dog that inflicted wounds on one of the first patients treated in the institute. The institute is still crowded to its full capacity. Thus far fifty-six patients have been treated, nifty per cent. of whom have been cured. Three more patients will be discharged tomorrow.

Put Pepper on Strawberries Nowadays.

"Pepper on your strawberries?" said a dusky waiter at Donner's Hotel, Philadelphia.

"What?" exclaimed the astonished guest, trying to think what day it was, lest there might be some reason for playing a joke on him. "No thank you. What do you mean by that?"

"Well, boss," said the waiter, "all gentlemen now takes pepper on strawberries. Just try one."

The guest did as directed, and to his surprise found it delightful, and soon sprinkled the whole saucer with the condiment.

"Do I now call for salt, mustard and vinegar?" said the guest, "I want to be up to the times."

"No, sah, take 'em jist that a-way, you'll fin' 'em elegant."

The guest investigated, and soon that a gentleman from the Orange Free State in South Africa was stopping at the hotel recently and insisted on treating his berries with pepper. This set the fashion, which is rapidly coming into favor.—Chicago Herald.

SPROAT TO NELSON.

Work on the Kootenay Lake and Columbia River Railway.

The Miner says: About forty days have elapsed since work was commenced on the Canadian Pacific branch from Sproat to Nelson. The company's interests are looked after by John McLeod as superintendent of construction, he having direct charge of all supplies. Whitehead, McLean & McKay have the contract for grading the first fourteen miles. They have made fair progress considering the difficulties with which they had to contend, and have 400 men (160 whites, 65 Italians, and 175 Chinese) and a number of teams strung out on the first five miles of the work, which takes them around the rocky bluffs at the mouth of the Kootenay. Under their contract this section of five miles is to be completed by July 15th. The remainder of the 14 miles is fine work, and the contractors expect to go through it a-flying.

The bridge work was let to the Genelle Brothers and D. R. Campbell. They also have had difficulties to overcome, but are now getting their forces in shape. The bridges across the Slocan and Kootenay rivers were not included in their contract. It is estimated the latter bridge will cost $45,000. The material for bridges is being cut at Sproat. The ties are made close to the right of way, sub-contractors doing the work. H. E. Leaycraft is the engineer in charge at the Sproat end.

On the Nelson end Hugh F. Keefer, the contractor has men strung along for several miles below the point at which the road will cross the Kootenay, (5 miles below Nelson). He has had trouble in getting in tools and supplies. Finding it almost impossible to get them by way of Sproat, he has made arrangements to bring in everything needed by way of Bonner's Ferry. On Thursday last he received by the Idaho several tons of wheelbarrows, steel and rails. The Idaho runs down to the head of the rapids; there the supplies are transferred to batteaux and taken to Davenport's landing, where a portage is made to the crossing below the falls. A scow ferry has been put in at that point, and supplies can either be crossed there by the pack train or run down to the camps by small boats, as the right-of-way runs along the north bank of the river.

About half a mile of steel has been laid, and an engine and flat car is on the ground. Tracklaying will be in charge of Robert Wetmore. President Van Horne is expected in next week to look the ground over and definitely settle where the line will cross the Kootenay River.

OVER $25,000.00 INSURANCE.

Payment Made by One Company to Mrs. Uriah Nelson.

Perhaps the largest single payment of life insurance ever made in Victoria was that to the widow of the late Uriah Nelson last Tuesday by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. Mr. Nelson was largely insured in several other companies, this being only the first payment. The amount paid was $25,410.00, and this extraordinary claim was settled within thirty days. Below we give Mrs. Nelson's letter of acknowledgment.

Victoria, B. C., 24th June, 1890.

A. D. Forbes, Esq.,
Gen. Agent Mutual Life Ins. Co.,
San Francisco, Cal.

DEAR SIR—

I have received yours of the 16th instant enclosing Company's cheque of $25,410.00, being the amount of insurance due on policies held by me on the life of my late husband, Mr. Uriah Nelson, in your Company.

I beg to thank the Company for the promptitude they have shown in paying the sum of the policies held by me, and have much pleasure in stating that the cheque from the Mutual Life reached me before that of any other company in which I have held an insurance on the life of my husband.

I am also indebted to your agents here—Messrs. Heisterman and Co.—for their courtesy and assistance in preparing the claims for presentation to the Company.

Faithfully yours,
ANNIE H. NELSON.

Goes Back to Frisco.

Charles Hogan, the 'Frisco embezzler, who was arrested last week, went back to the Bay City by to-day's steamer. He elected to go back quietly without bringing into force the extradition laws.

Change of Officers.

First mate Williams, of the steamer Islander, has resigned, and his place has been filled by Capt. John Macleod, formerly master of the schooner Venture. Capt. Macleod is an old and experienced steamboat hand, and was for a long time in the C.P.N. Co.'s employ.

The Colored Jennie Lind.

At the Victoria to-night, Miss Batson will be supported by Mr. Frederick Adderley of London, England, in humorous and dramatic recitations; Mr. R. Proctor, cornet soloist, Mrs Dalton Thomas of Portland, piano soloist and the Victoria band. The house ought to be packed. Tickets at Waitt's.

Determined to Win.

Mr. Tully Boyce, President of the M. and M. L. Association, in speaking to a reporter yesterday, said: "No, I did not say that Chinese and Japanese were employed in the mines, but it is currently reported in San Francisco that the Dunsmuirs intend to employ them by the employment of Chinamen, and that they intend to put gangs of them in the Mines on Monday next. All the Trades' Unions in San Francisco, which number over fifteen thousand members have pledged themselves to assist us, so that in the event of the mines being worked the coal will not be discharged in San Francisco. Besides the Trades' Union other organizations have resolved to give us every assistance in their power, so that I feel confident we are bound to win the day. The Dunsmuirs may employ all the blacklegs and Japanese they like, but it will do them no good to mine the coal if they cannot get it discharged in San Francisco. We have got everything connected with this strike on a sound basis, and we are determined to win.

Bonded for Fifty Thousand Dollars.

The negotiations that have for the past few weeks been carried on between the owners of the Queen Victoria copper claim—Messrs. Brown, Becker and Burns—and several of the Canadian Pacific officials, have at last been concluded satisfactorily to all concerned. The claim has been bonded for $50,000 for six months. The terms of the agreement are substantially as follows: Within 60 days from the 7th of this month the bonders are at liberty to withdraw from the contract pending the decision of Mr. Stedbury, the mining expert acting in their interest. If at the end of that time the claim is declared accepted, a bonus of $1,250 is to be paid spot cash. Before the expiration of the three months following the payment of the bonus half the price, $25,000, is to be paid over. If the results of the development work are not satisfactory the bonders are still at liberty to refuse the claim, forfeiting, however, all that may have been expended on it. If the claim is satisfactory at the end of the three months, the balance of the bond price, $20,000, is to be paid on or before the 7th day of December. The bonding party bind themselves to expend $4000 in development work during the six months.

The purchasers recognize the fact that the ore is low grade, but they are attracted by the immense body in sight, by the facility with which a mine so situated could be operated, and by the ever increasing number of encouraging indications of a higher grade ore as the hanging wall is approached, a tunnel now being in about 30 feet on the ledge croppings.—Kootenay Miner.

Loud in his Praises.

The Port Townsend Leader speaking of Custom Collector Wood's visit to Victoria says: Mr. Wood is loud in his praises of the treatment accorded him by the Canadian authorities. He was met by Collector A. R. Milne, Collector John S. Clute, of New Westmlaster, and Inspector Young. Wood was placed in a hack and taken to the Driard Hotel where rooms had been engaged for him. Later he was driven about the city and otherwise entertained.

The ladies will have a sale of the goods remaining every Wednesday, from 2 to 5 o'clock p. m., at the vestry of the church entrance on Yates street.

U. S. Stamps.

Nelson is the only established post office in Canada, says the Miner, whose postmaster sells more United States stamps than Canadian. Yet it is not the postmaster's fault that the Canadian treasury is minus the revenue it should receive. It is the fault of the Dominion postal authorities. If a postal route was established between Nelson and the boundary line, via Ainsworth, all letters mailed in the Kootenay Lakes country would be embellished with a portrait of her most gracious majesty and not with one adorned by a picture of the man who could not tell a lie—George Washington.

Set to Music.

Much interest has been shown by musical people in this city in a piece of music lately arrived from London, this being a setting, composed by E. Evelyn Barron, of one of the songs in Mr. Pocock's "Rocky Mountain Club," now being published in the TIMES. Although originally written for the volume in question, "The Plainsman's Bridal Song" first appeared in the "Poems of Wild Life," the latest number of the famous Canterbury Poets series. "The Rocky Mountain Club" contains several other original frontier songs, which are now being set to music by the large eminent composer.

The Miner.

The first number of the Miner, published at Nelson, has made its appearance. It is a very creditable production, and if towns are guaged by the papers they produce, the mining capital of the great Kootenay region will get a certificate of character that will establish for it a good name in the outside world. Mr. Huson, who gave Truth to New Westminster, is one of founders of the Miner, and his connection with it is a guarantee that the new journal will not go into a decline from inanition or misabacklsm, conditions of society which that original edition is decidedly opposed to. The new exponent of public opinion has our best wishes for its success.

Knights of Pythias.

Far West Lodge No. 1, Knights of Pythias, elected the following officers last evening: H. A. Duke, Chancellor Commander; M. Moss, Vice Chancellor Francis Hinds, Prelate; P. J. Hall, Master-at-arms; H. F. W. Behnsen, trustee. In Victoria Division No. 2, Uniform Rank, Sir Knight Plummer was elected Sir Knight Lieutenant; H. A. Duke was elected Sir Knight Herald; Samuel Sea, Sir Knight Guard and H. Webber, Sir Knight Sentinel. The Sir Knights and members of Far West Lodge will meet on Monday evening for the purpose of accompanying Sir Knight Capitain Behnsen to the Sound steamer. Captain Behnsen will attend the Supreme Lodge meeting at Milwaukee. The Knights will hold a demonstration at Nanaimo on the 14th July, the anniversary of the first Pythian Lodge in British Columbia.

A Tree Falls on T. C. Collins—The C. P. R. Bonds & Mine—The "Miner."

NELSON, June 22.—An unfortunate accident occurred near Nelson on the 20th. Mr. T. C. Collins was engaged in a contract for Messrs. Davys & Tolson's new saw mill. While endeavoring to get out of the way of the larger of two falling trees, the smaller, which had been leaning against the other, suddenly cleared it and came down with a crash on Collins' back, striking him to the ground. His injuries are bad but not dangerous. One rib is broken and he is very badly bruised. In the absence of a qualified physician everything possible has been done for him, and there is hope of a speedy recovery. Mr. Collins is interested in one of the finest groups of silver prospects in West Kootenay.

Gorman, who was stabbed here a few days ago, intends to get well and is carrying out his intentions.

It is rumored that the Hendryx Company have bought out Mr. Dolan's half interest in the Tough Nut claim for eight or ten thousand dollars. They are projecting a wagon road to the mine.

The Queen Victoria copper claim has been bonded lately by C. P. R. officials for the sum of $50,000.

The crushing mill on the Poor Man is in capital working order and has been running since the 7th inst.

We are enjoying infamous weather.

Mr. A. D. Wheeler brought his bride home to the Warm Springs by the last steamer.

The Miner appeared for the first time on the 21st instant. Kootenay Lake has a newspaper at last.

The Miner says operations have already begun preparatory to carrying on the work of clearing out the rocks at the Falls, so as to prevent the annual overflow of the bottoms in Lower Kootenay. Two houses are now in course of construction at the first ripple below Nelson—the one a boarding and the other a sleeping house for the workmen engaged. The rock work will be commenced as soon as the water has fallen sufficiently. It is estimated that about 28,000 cubic yards of dirt and rock will have to be removed. The work is being done by the Kootenay Valley Company, of which Mr. Baillie-Grohman is manager.

SPRING POETRY.

Oh! why should the spirit of Law Son be proud,
Does victory dwell with the Colonist crowd,
Did the country go back on Beaven and Grant,
Because they acknowledged the single tax plank?
Not much!

Then why does the spirit of Law Son soar high,
Have the single tax men turned his wits all awry,
Does he not know defeat in the dress that it wears;
Must the single tax men again slit his ears?
It seems so!

Will the spirit of Law Son forever rejoice?
His crowd was "left out" by the popular voice;
They did not "hoap sahee" the single tax plan,
The result is prophetic, they elected One man!
They did!

Can it be that poor Law Son is off of his base,
That his reason is gone in this single tax race,
That the recent election has left him insane,
And he's suffering now from "Grant on the brain?"
It looks like it.

When the "spook" of poor Law Son starts up the incline,
With an emigrant ticket on Rev. Fall's line,
He will find when he gets there the state owns the land,
And the whole show is run on the single tax plan,
Let him —R. I. P.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

The Exercises, Promotions, and Prize Lists at the Victoria West School.

Yesterday afternoon the closing examinations of the Victoria West school took place in the presence of a large number of ladies and gentlemen, who were struck with the smartness with which the pupils answered questions and rendered the programme. R. J. Russell and trustees McKenzie and Bishop addressed the pupils and teachers, complimenting them on the success of their efforts. Flower gardens were not spared to make the school look beautiful on the closing day, and everything passed off smoothly. Three rousing cheers given for principal Nicholson and assistant Galloway, showed the esteem in which they are held by the pupils.

What's the Reason?

The causes of summer complaint, diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera morbus, etc., are the excessive heat, eating green fruit, over exertion, impure water and sudden chill. Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is an infallible and prompt cure for all bowel complaints from whatever cause.

Tickborne, K. & P. R. Co.

I take pleasure in certifying that I have used Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in my family for years and find it a sure cure for diarrhoea and summer complaints both for children and adults. Mrs. John McMahon, Tickborne, Ont.

THIEVES BREAK THROUGH.

The Genial Crackesman Makes His Presence Felt Again.

The city of Victoria has happily been free from robbers and thieves for the past few weeks, but again the crackesman is here. On Thursday evening the residence of the Rev. Dr. Reid on Richardson street near the Fairfield Road, was entered by housebreakers and a considerable quantity of trinkets, etc., stolen. The thieves made entrance by using long pliers with which the keys were turned. The same night the residence of Mr. Taylor on the same street, was entered and different articles and some cash stolen, no clue being left in either case.

The latest effort of the burglar, though, is an attempt which was made last night to burst the safe of A. Phillips & Son, Yates street. The burglar forced an entrance to the back premises by raising a window, and securing a monkey wrench and hammer, commenced work on the safe He was evidently a novice at the business of safe cracking, for the principal attack was made on the hinges. This shows the burglar was green, for even is the hinges were entirely removed, the back catch would still keep the door from opening. The handle for turning the bolt was hammered somewhat, too, but no systematic attempt made to open the safe. Mr. Phillips says even if it had been opened, the burglar would have been illy paid, as but $13.50 was in the cash box. No clue was left in this case, and there is small chance of culprits being arrested.

BRIBERY AND CORRUPTION.

The Election of J. W. Horne, Vancouver, Appealed Against.

Mr. Williams, of McPhillips & Williams, barristers, Vancouver, in behalf of Samuel Greer, appellant, to-day entered an appeal under the Controverted Elections Act, against the return of Mr. J. W. Horne for the city of Vancouver. The appellant alleges bribery and corruption, and undue influence on the part of Mr. Horne, personally and through agents and asks that the election be set aside and that the respondent be disqualified.

As there will be over a hundred witnesses to examine at the trial, the case will probably be heard at Vancouver. Interesting developments may be expected, as Mr. Greer, who accompanied Mr. Williams to the city, does not hesitate to affirm that the sum of fifteen thousand dollars was expended in the election, and that through such expenditure he was defeated.

Postponed.

The trial trip of the new steamer Bon Accord was postponed this afternoon until Monday forenoon at half past ten. Some small finishing work remained to be done which accounts for the delay.

Stewards Changed.

The well known chief steward of the City of Kingston, Mr. Alex. Lytle, has left that vessel to take a similar position on the steamer Premier. Mr. Rankine, a former employee of the Pacific Mail Co., takes Mr. Lytle's place.

Goes East.

A rumor was current on the streets to-day that a well-known saloon keeper of this city had evaporated. He went over on the City of Kingston Thursday evening to the land of the free. To the steward of that boat he showed a through ticket east, remarking that he was leaving Victoria for good.

Victoria West Church.

On Wednesday evening next, David G. S. Connery, B. A., professor of elocution and Mr. Charles Kelly, basso cantata and solo guitarist, will appear in the school room of the First Presbyterian church. The proceeds will be devoted to the building fund of the Victoria West Presbyterian church. Both gentlemen are highly spoken of by the eastern press and in their special lines have few superiors. The object is a good one and the room ought to be crowded.

Only Two Flags.

Although to-day was Coronation Day, only two flags were waving to the breeze over the city, and one of them was hoisted by the firemen over the Tiger engine house. The other was waving on the Colonist's flag pole.

East Kootenay.

Mr. McPhillips, barrister, of Vancouver, who was present at the recount of votes at Donald, in the interest of Mr. Law, says that the result gave Col. Baker only one of a majority. The friends of Mr. Law, we learn on good authority, are of opinion that there is sufficient evidence of crookedness to unseat Col. Baker, and a protest will in all probability be entered.

Excursionists.

At 3:30 yesterday afternoon the steamer Sehome arrived at Turner, Beeton & Company's wharf with about 300 key cityits, who had come over on the Congregational Church excursion. The excursionists spent the afternoon in driving around the city, with which they were thoroughly pleased. The boat also called at Port Angeles and took a run around Esquimalt.

For the Bay City.

The Umatilla sailed for San Francisco this morning with the following passengers: A. E. McMillan, S. St. Mechener, W. Sehl, R. Morrison, J. Lankers, F. A. Cornell, A. C. Freeman and wife, Mrs. J. A. Roy and son, Mrs. M. S. Thom, Mrs. M. A. Brown, H. E. Hog and wife, F. A. Ide and Geo. Boyce.

Wouldn't Take Coppers.

A street car conductor on the Old Tacoma line, says the Ledger, recently put Henry De Wolf off the car because he offered five copper cents, a legal tender, to pay his fare. Through his attorney, W. H. Reid, De Wolf yesterday brought suit against the company for $2,000 damages for "the indignities he suffered at the hands of the conductor, the degradation to which he was subjected in the eyes of the people and the inconvenience to which he was put by being ejected from the car and having to walk home." The grounds upon which Mr. De Wolf bases his complaint are that the Tacoma Railway and Motor Company is a common carrier, and that he offered to pay the regular fare with five cents legal tender of the United States.

Accident at Chilcat.

The Sitka Alaskan of the 21st instant says: Lieut. Seaton-Karr, who arrived on the Topeka, brought down a miner with his party, who had marched with his pack across one of the passes from the west, and whose two partners Louis Sund and Thomas Jonson were almost capsized on a raft they had constructed, which struck a log, and the former was drowned. Mr. Seton Karr also met with serious dangers, one canoe and a raft belonging to his party being capsized at the same spot, but without loss of life or any of the baggage which was all securely lashed. The Indians reported to the lieutenant that they had seen the body of another white man on the Chilcat river about a week previously.

CAMERON'S

BID FOR BUSINESS.

ARE YOU WILLING to be convinced that you may be wasting money? Or are you like the old lady who was willing to be convinced, but would like to see the person who could convince her?

TO PAY THE PRICES others ask is simply rank nonsense. It is paying a premium to greediness and emptying your purse to fill pockets bulging with plunder.

THAT OTHER ADS two prices is no reason why you should pay more than one, or that you should suppose that the two price piratical profit plan is associated with every business.

WHEN YOU CAN come into our store, handle our goods, compare them in price and quality, and prove to your own satisfaction that we are living up to our claim of low price dealing, why don't you come?

GET LOWER PRICES and save money. That's the idea. You can get them. If no other store offers them our store does. Our way of doing it—"low prices." That's our bid for business.

AT OUR STORE you will find as choice a display as you ever looked on. Nothing that belongs to a first stock is missing—except the usual exorbitant prices. Our prices are very low.
